Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Literary Recollections, Vol. 1 of 2 As my work was intended to be devoted exclusively to the mention of departed friends, and by-gone events, the laudatory notice of living characters would appear to be what law. Yers emphatically call travelling out of the record, or, in common language, deviating from its purposed plan: I should not, therefore, have here introduced the following quotation from the Berkshire Chronicle, written I know not when, nor by whom, had I not considered it in the light of a tribute (rather than an eulogy) due, in the strictest justice, to the judicious zeal, well-directed energy, and extensive usefulness, of a distinguished prelate; who, after having conferred many public and private blessings on a distant diocese, has, for the last five years, been pursuing the same pious, discreet, and exemplary conduct in that of Bath and Wells.
