General Outline of the Mine Country. The district of country which is characterized by affording lead ore, and formerly known as the lead mines of Louisiana, comprises the present counties of Washington, St. Genevieve, Jefferson, and Madison: Missouri Territory. It extends in length from the head waters of the St. Francis, in a northwest direction, to the Merrimack, a distance of 70 miles; and in breadth from the Mississippi in a southwest direction to the Fourche a Courtois, a distance of about 45 miles, and covering an area of 3150 square miles. This tract is generally characterized by yielding lead ores, and is the seat of such mines as now are, or have formerly been wrought. It is not on every particular section of it that the existence of lead is to be traced, nor is the mineral character of the soil, rocks, and other earthy and stony bodies uniformly preserved. And, on the contrary, there is no considerable tract, on which ore is not to be found. The general aspect of the country is sterile, though not mountainous: the lands lie rolling, like a body of water in gentle agitation. In some places the hills rise into abrupt cliffs, where the great rock formations of the country may be seen; in others, they run into level plains: a kind of highland prairie. The soil is a reddish coloured clay, stiff and hard, and full of fragments of flinty stone, quartz, and...
